Uncommon Collaboration™

What Great Teams Give
Each Other

Keynote Description

You've probably said it yourself: "We have good people, but we're not functioning as one team." Everyone's working hard, yet somehow we're pulling in different directions. The instinct is to blame communication, structure, or process. But the real issue runs deeper: people have stopped giving each other the gifts they need to succeed.

Mark Kenny calls these gifts The Four Collaboration Passes: Presence, Truth, Grace, and Belief.

People move forward as one team when they intentionally pass what others need.

Through sharp storytelling and carefully designed interactive experiences, audiences experience how the Four Collaboration Passes rebuild trust, unlock honest conversations, and turn a group of hard-working individuals into a team that actually moves together.

Audiences leave energized, reconnected, and equipped with a practical framework they can use in their very next conversation.
